Moravian Roots

This summer the Moravian Archives is launching a new project, “Moravian Roots.” The Moravian Roots database will eventually include information on thousands of baptisms, marriages, and funerals from almost two-hundred and fifty church registers kept at the Moravian Archives. Volunteers and staff have begun to enter information into the database; so far several Moravian Church registers have been indexed, including New Dawn (Toronto, ON), Canal Dover (Dover, OH), Lake Mills (Lake Mills, WI), Midland Beach (Staten Island, NY), First Moravian (Easton, PA), Big Oak (Yardley, PA), and Hope (Hope, NJ). Moravian Roots will make it so much easier to find vital information on any person who has been baptized, married, or buried by the Moravian Church since 1740. The database will also include confirmations and receptions into the congregation. A professional database programmer designed the database in which the registers are indexed.

Ultimately, we intend to make Moravian Roots searchable online. We are also talking to other Moravian archives to participate in the project. However, before we can make the database available, many more records need to be entered. Many registers kept in English, German, Danish, and even Norwegian, are still waiting to be indexed! Please let us know if you’d like to volunteer for the Moravian Roots project. If you are unable to come to the Bethlehem archives we would be happy to digitize registers for those who wish to work on indexing remotely. For more information, contact assistant archivist Tom McCullough at: tom@moravianchurcharchives.org

New: Saturday Hours at Moravian Archives

The Moravian Archives is introducing Saturday hours. On four Saturdays during the upcoming months, the Moravian Archives will be open to the public. Anyone interested in doing research in the reading room, in seeing our fabulous Building Bethlehem exhibit, or in purchasing something in our gift shop, can now do so on the weekend.

The Saturday hours are introduced as a trial. “We regularly hear from people who would like to come in on a Saturday,” says Moravian archivist Paul Peucker. “During the Bethlehem anniversary year, we would like to open the anniversary exhibit on a Saturday as well.”

The Moravian Archives will be open from 9:00 am until 4:00 pm on the following four Saturdays: September 24 and December 17, 2016, and on March 18 and on May 20, 2017.

Workshops at the Moravian Archives

Both of our workshops held during the month of April 2016 were a great success. Early in April, a genealogy workshop was led by assistant archivist Tom McCullough. Tom discussed recordkeeping practices in the Moravian Church, and, using hands-on exercises with items from the collection, instructed participants about a variety of resources available at the Archives for family research, including church registers, catalogs, congregational diaries, and memoirs. Tom will present this summer at the Historical Society of Pennsylvania on a similar topic: “Family Research Using German Church Records.”

Later in the month, a bookbinding workshop was held, where participants had a chance to make their own books from raw materials. This engaging workshop was led by Archives’ volunteer Dee Collins, a printmaker and book artist, who retired from the Collection Care Department of the Free Library of Philadelphia and has volunteered at the Archives since 2013. Stay posted for a workshop in the near future for making paste paper, in which Dee will instruct participants how to craft a type of paper that was a product of Moravian Single Sisters.

Deed Day 2016

More than 850 people came to visit the Moravian Archives on April 2, 2016, the day we had named Deed Day. On April 2, 1741, the deed for the purchase of the 500-acre tract for Bethlehem was formally signed. 275 years later we put the deed on display for the public. This was the first time the deed was on public display.

Never before did so many people visit the Moravian Archives. Volunteers were placed in various locations throughout the building to guide the visitors and to answer their questions. The Bethlehem Area Moravian trombone choir greeted the visitors. Other musical ensembles, sponsored by the Moravian Music Foundation, performed throughout the day.

The purchase of the 500 acres marked the formal establishment of the Moravian Church in America as well as the beginning of the City of Bethlehem. At the end of the day, we safely returned the deed to the vault.

Moravian Silver Donated to Moravian Archives

A collection of beautiful silver spoons, made by Moravian silversmith John Matthew Miksch, was donated to the Moravian Archives. We received seven tablespoons, three teaspoons, a pair of silver tongs, and a punch ladle. The donor told us she had purchased the silver many years ago. Now that she had to downsize, she was looking for a new home for these items. When she received the previous issue of our newsletter, the donor was reminded of the Bethlehem Archives.

“I want these spoons to stay in Bethlehem and I know they are secure in your facility,” the donor told us.

Miksch was born in Christiansbrunn, PA, in 1798 and worked as a silversmith in Bethlehem. Miksch was a notable resident of Bethlehem and a trusted member of the Moravian Church. He was actively involved with the complicated process of the incorporation of the borough of Bethlehem (1845) and the subsequent incorporation of the Moravian congregation of Bethlehem (1851). He served on the school board and was chief burgess of Bethlehem for several terms.

After his first wife Lizette Dixon died in 1829 he married Caroline Vierling. Miksch died in 1882 and is buried in God’s Acre.
New Finding Aids

Archivist Paul Peucker is currently working to organize the records of the Provincial Helpers’ Conference, the predecessor to the Provincial Elders’ Conference, Northern Province. This large record group covers the period 1763-1857 and contains a wide variety of sources that effectively document Moravian activities in North America.

During the past few months, assistant archivist Tom McCullough arranged and described a number of small record groups from Moravian congregations in the Midwestern United States. Finding aids are now available for the following Moravian congregations: First, Trinity, and Wisconsin Rapids (Wisconsin Rapids, WI), Rudolph (Rudolph, WI), Saratoga Union (Saratoga, WI), London (Cambridge, WI), Main Street (Northfield, MN), Hebron (Norton, MN), Bethesda (Bashow Twp., MN), Alice (Alice, ND), Bethel (Leonard, ND), Goshen (Durbin, ND), Embeden (Embeden, ND), Cas selton (Casselton, ND), and Canaan (Davenport, ND).

Additionally cataloged were contemporary records that had been sent to Bethlehem by Newport Moravian Church in Newport and across New England.

A collection of 700 photograph portraits was cataloged by volunteers Daniel Stocker and Mitchell Thomas, students of Moravian College and Lehigh University, respectively. We are currently in the process of digitizing this collection through the help of volunteers.

Exhibit: Building Bethlehem

Moravians began building Bethlehem 275 years ago. On a bank overlooking the Monocacy Creek and the Lehigh River they built a log cabin and a large community house (Gemeinhaus). Within a few years, many structures were erected to house a diverse community of men and women who lived, worked, and worshiped together.

This special anniversary exhibit in the gallery of the Moravian Archives features some of the earliest building plans, drawings, and maps showing the development of Bethlehem during the colonial period. The drawings are combined with artifacts, paintings, and nineteenth-century photographs of the buildings. The exhibit highlights the role of Henry Antes who purchased the Bethlehem tract for the Moravians and oversaw many of the building projects.

News and Announcements

Privacy & Confidentiality Workshop
The Moravian Archives is proud to host this workshop offered by the Society of American Archivists (SAA). This course covers privacy and confidentiality legal issues specific to archives of digital material. Participants will examine the intersection of (and the tension between) privacy/confidentiality, free speech and freedom to research/write, and focus on how electronic records and the digital realm have altered the scene. You’ll look at privacy and confidentiality issues in the context of third party rights, donors, special situations such as medical and education records, national security legislation, and the overriding impact of the digital world. Through case studies, you will examine specific situations pertinent to the work of archivists. For more details and to register visit the SAA website: www.archivists.org
